Three Reasons for Giving Thanks (Psalm 107:1-9)

The Point: Give thanks for the ways God is at work in your life.

The Bible Meets Life: Whether it's burned cookies or spilled coffee, no one likes a food mishap. Yet, one of our in-home conveniences resulted from a food accident.

Percy Spencer, born in Maine in 1984, went to live with his aunt when he was orphaned. To help financially, he quit school in the fifth grade and took his first job. The field of electricity fascinated him, so when the local paper mill converted to electricity, Percy, then sixteen, convinced the owners he could help. By studying "how to" books at night and installing wires during the day, he became a master electrician.

A company developing electrical products hired Percy in 1925. Later, while working on a microwave tube to improve submarine radar systems, Percy noticed that a chocolate bar melted in his shirt pocket. From this fluke, he went on to develop what would become the microwave oven.

Sometimes good comes out of bad circumstances. Today we will study a psalm that described a time when God's people experienced a crisis. How did God respond? How did the people respond? Would they grumble, or would they be grateful?

Live It Out: Recall. Can you think of crises in your life in which God was working all things for good, even if you did not realize it at those moments? Pray and thank God for His good work in your life?

Write. Did God use someone to help you through one of those moments? This week, drop them a note; let them know how thankful you are for what they did. Respond. God often uses people as a conduit of His goodness. Do you know people who are sick, grieving, hungry, or hurting? Reach out and offer tangible support or assistance this week to at least one person who is going through a crisis. Both of you will be thankful you did.

Missing Dish

Please double check that you picked up the correct dish from the Thanksgiving meal. Someone is missing a cream-colored Corningware dish that held green beans. If you grabbed this dish, please bring it to the Church Office. Your dish is in the kitchen!
