Consider what I say, for the Lord will give you understanding in everything.

Study God's Word (2 Timothy 2:14-19, 22-26)

The Point: Regular study of God's Word keeps us firmly grounded.

The Bible Meets Life: I'm a huge Major League Baseball fan. Even as a child, I sat in front of the TV watching countless games and highlight reels. Today, you can ask me about any of the rules, and I can explain them to you. Show me a picture of a ballpark, and I'll tell you the city where it sits. I am a self-proclaimed expert on all things Major League Baseball.

I can go a step further. As an adult, I have attended a game in person at every Major League ballpark. Consequently, the general information I learned as a kid has become more deeply enhanced. Watching games on TV now is an even richer experience because I've been there.

In a similar way, simply reading Scripture certainly allows us to know about God and His Word. But studying the Bible takes it to a deeper—and richer—level. The words, the events, and Jesus's teaching come alive when we invest the time to do more than just read the text. It's more than an exercise to fill our brains with facts, however; our lives become rich as we live out what we study.

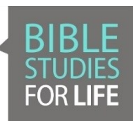

Live It Out: First base: Evaluate your overall disposition toward those who follow the world's various distortions of God's Word. Ensure that you are demonstrating a gentle spirit rather than a combative attitude. Second base: If you don't have one, consider purchasing a good study Bible. Consult with your pastor or other trusted leader for a good recommendation. Third base: Start studying a book of the Bible more in depth. Perhaps you could ask another believer to study with you for mutual accountability.
