A Mission Without Boundaries

Acts 13:1-3, 44-52

The Point: Sharing the message of Christ is a privilege that could take you anywhere.

The Bible Meets Life: We live in a unique time in history as modern air travel allows us to arrive nearly anywhere in a matter of days or even hours. Consequently, people are migrating all around the world. With the advance of technology, the gospel has advanced. Yet of the approximately twelve thousand unique people groups known to exist, more than seven thousand remain less than two percent Christian—and of those, roughly three thousand remain unengaged with the gospel. How will the millions of people who are part of these people groups hear the good news?

America itself has become an amazingly diverse country of ethnicities and backgrounds. We can be thankful for the many opportunities to do “international missions” in our own backyard.

The nations have come to us, but that doesn’t negate the call for us to go to the nations. The world need to know about Jesus, and we have a role to play in that. The church at Antioch understood its role in the Great Commission and has much to teach us today.

Live It Out: Reflect. In what ways could you be a greater part of the Great Commission? Commit to pray for missionaries, generously support them, and be a part of sending them out. Rejoice. Spend some time in prayer thanking God for His work in your life, in your church, and in our world. Ask God to allow your heart and mind to be filled with joy in knowing Him and being a part of His work, and to protect you from discouragement and negativity, even in the midst of difficulties or painful circumstances.
